Embryo Journalists Meet In Annual MIEA Session Here Tomorrow

The northwestern section of the Montana Interscholastic Editorial Association will meet in the Garden City tomorrow. Delegates from approximately 16 schools will attend, Andrew Cogswell, assistant professor of journalism at the University, who is in charge of the program, announced. Among the schools already registered are Anaconda, Helena, Butte, Drummond, Superior, Dixon, Kalispell and Missoula.

The day's meet will open with an inspection tour of the journalism building at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Following the tour, there will be a general meeting over which Betty Hyde, Kalispell, president of MIEA, will preside. James L. C. Ford, dean of the school of journalism, and Walter A. Anderson, dean of education, will speak at this session.

The morning session will close with four group discussions. Deane Jones, city editor of the Missoulian, will be in charge of the editorial group; Ray Rocene, sports editor of the Missoulian, will handle sports, and the advertising group will be directed by Felicita Pease, of the Missoulian advertising staff. Advisors of the high school papers will also meet in the morning.

At 12:15 o'clock, the group will hear Dean Emeritus Stone speak at a luncheon at the Palace Hotel.

The afternoon session will begin with a general meeting at 1:30 o'clock in the Konah office at the Missoula County High School.

A tour of the Missoulian plant, during which those attending will see an issue of the daily Sentinel printed, and a visit to radio station KGVO will close the conference.

State Press Will Award Scholarship

The journalism faculty will make a preliminary selection of three candidates for the Montana State Press Association scholarship at the beginning of spring quarter.

Applications are to be made to Dean Ford, in writing, by March 10. The faculty will act on written applications and also reserve the right to make nominations of its own.

Provisions of the scholarship include: 1. The scholarship will be awarded to a senior journalism major to become effective at the beginning of his senior year.

2. The scholarship will be awarded on the basis of scholarship, achievement and need of the individual.

3. The final judging of the three candidates chosen by the faculty in the preliminary selections will be done by a committee composed of the Montana State Press Association and the Dean of the School of Journalism and will be based on records prepared on each of the candidates.

4. The announcement of the successful recipient will be made at commencement this spring.

Cupid Theme Is Selected For Co-Ed

Decorations for the annual Co-Ed Ball, scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 19, will follow a Valentine theme, with large red and white Valentines at either end of the dance floor, and other decorations carried out in the same motif, according to Cathy Cowell, Missoula, chairman of the decorations committee.

Chancellor and Mrs. E. O. Melby head the list of chaperons, assisted by President and Mrs. Charles W. Leaphart, Dean and Mrs. J. Earle Miller, and Dean Mary Elrod Ferguson.

Marjorie Harrison, Bridger, AWS president, and her escort will lead the grand march. The programs, also serving in the capacity of tickets, will follow the color scheme in metallic fuchsia with blue printing. There will be 12 dances and two extras.

Tickets for the ball have been on sale in the Student Union Store since yesterday.

Sentinel Pics Finish Today

No more pictures will be taken for the Sentinel by Ace Woods studio after today, Editor Lorraine Griffith, Williston, N.D., announces.

Copy and pictures for the first half of the annual must be complete by the February 15 deadline and it is therefore important that all groups and individuals cooperate when called upon for picture appointments, Miss Griffith said.

She urges students working on the Sentinel staff to do all they can in typing copy and drawing copy layouts during this coming week.

J. H. McCulley of the Tribune Printing and Supply Company of Great Falls visited the Sentinel office Monday and Tuesday to help with layout and an other Sentinel problems.

Casaba Five Makes Trip To Cheney

Cuthbert to Accompany Grizzly Hoopster Quint In Place of Buzzetti

University "Grizzlies" packed up yesterday and travelled to Cheney, Wash., where they will meet the powerful Eastern Washington basketball five tonight and tomorrow night. Jack Cuthbert, ASMSU president, is travelling with the squad in place of Coach Buzzetti.

The Grizzlies have lost four straight games, but will still try to break into the winning column when they tangle with the high-scoring Cheney outfit. The Grizzlies, practically all freshmen, are gaining valuable experience as they go along.

Bulen, center, and Jesse, guard, have starred consistently for the Grizzlies. Other players have had their high-scoring nights also, especially Boese and Fisher.

Grizzlies have lost to the School of Mines twice and Carroll College twice in past weekend games but have shown more polish in their offensive lately and should be at their best for their series with Cheney.

University students will be asked Wednesday to express their opinions on the soldier vote bill, still hanging fire in Congress. Ballots prepared under the sponsorship of Central Board will be given to students in the 9 and 10 o'clock classes. Results of the survey are to be tabulated and sent to Representative Michael J. Mansfield to show MSU's reaction to the bill.

An information quiz type of program will be featured at the Freshman Convocation scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 10 at 1 o'clock in the Student Union Auditorium.

ROTC Rifle Team To Meet OSC

The University rifle team is rapidly taking shape and will compete against Oregon State College, Corvallis, next Saturday, according to Major G. W. Misevic.

Three of the teams which were to compete in last week's rifle matches were unable to participate and a fourth postponed its match until February 18.

Ely Speaks Tuesday At Soc-Econ Meeting

Dr. Ray J. W. Ely, associate professor of economics, talked on subsidies at the second meeting of the newly-formed Sociology-Economics Club, Tuesday evening in the Bitterroot Room.

Postwar Plans For Aviation Discussed

Representatives from colleges and universities interested in postwar aviation training will meet today in Spokane. The conference has been called by A. S. Merrill, regional coordinator of the National Association of Colleges and Universities in Aviation Training.

Dr. A. S. Merrill, University faculty member, has announced that there will be one joint session with Airport Operators who will be meeting at the same time. Harold Chatland, assistant professor of mathematics, will also attend the conference.

A postwar aviation conference was held last Saturday in Helena with representatives of high schools and colleges in the state attending. The meeting was called by J. A. Woodard, of the State Department of Public Instruction, upon suggestion by Miss Elizabeth Ireland, superintendent, and Chancellor Ernest O. Melby.

At last Saturday's meeting the motion was passed that "a state committee on Aviation Education be appointed and sponsored jointly by the State Department of Public Instruction and the University. Faculty members attending the conference were Walter A. Anderson, dean of education, Dr. Merrill, and Professor Chatland.

ASMSU President Jack Cuthbert requests an all-student return in order that the survey may be a thorough one, indicative of student sentiment.

At present a Congressional bloc favors returning the bill to the individual states to be settled as a problem, peculiar to each state.

Enemies of federal control of the soldier ballot claim that control by the government is an encroachment on states rights while friends of control of the vote by federal machinery believe that election machinery of individual states is too bulky to provide for an efficient means of handling the servicemen's ballots. Some states as yet have made no provision for simplified absentee ballots for men in the armed services. Montana has provided for an absent voter's ballot for servicemen.

For the past four weeks the Kaimin has run a series of editorials on the question by a freshman girl, a Missoula editor and a Missoula citizen.

Music Students Present Program For Education

In a program planned by music students, Stanley M. Teel, associate professor of music, demonstrated to Education Club members Tuesday evening, the use of a recording machine.

Five music majors spoke explaining how music can be incorporated into University classes outside the School of Music and into the University program as a whole.

The following officers were elected at the meeting: President, Jean Menard, Butte; vice-president, Loisevelyn Scifers, Harlem, and secretary-treasurer, Gwen Kestle, Walkerville.

Plans for the next meeting will be handled by home economics students and the Education Club will meet in the home economics rooms at Missoula County High School. The meeting following schedules the appearance of two public school superintendents who will "interview" prospective teacher candidates.

Student Union Sees Informal Hop

Lads in khaki and lassies in their best bib and tucker will enjoy an all-University informal mixer-type dance tomorrow night in the Student Union, Cyrille Van Duser, Union manager has announced.

To allow aviation students in the Jive Bombers an open post Hal Herbig's band will take over with the music. Dancing will begin at 9 o'clock.

This is the second all-University social event of the winter quarter. If this type of night life proves successful Miss Van Duser promises more to come.

Stags are welcome.

Jo College Votes

Jo College is a thoughtful lassie today. Her sparkling blue eyes are serious as she studies the toe of one dirty saddle shoe. For the past four weeks she's heard the viewpoints, pro and con, on the soldier vote question. Wednesday she joins her fellow students of the University in expressing her views on the question.

Just another straw vote, some may scoff. Just another poll to determine the direction of the wind. Nothing for Jo to worry her pretty head about. Perhaps not. Jo's vote is just one of approximately 500 — one of 500 votes that will be tabulated and reported to Montana's congressman, Mike Mansfield, as an indication of student opinion.

But Jo does take the whole thing seriously. Her research on the soldier vote question has made her realize that the straw votes of the millions of Jo Colleges all over the nation are the voice of American youth, and that although her piping squeak may be lost in the sound of many voices it is necessary to raise it to help swell the chorus. It's all tied up with her rights and responsibilities as an heir to an estate now being contested bitterly in the South Pacific, in Italy, in Alaska.

Jo may be a dreamy idealist to worry over a mere slip of paper given to men, who many claim do not want the ballot and are completely unqualified to use it. But don't tell Jo so. She won't appreciate it.

Jo has faced the facts, as she has been able to ferret them out. She has read and talked and thought. A freshman girl has told her that the soldiers must be allowed to vote. Jo knows that and believes it firmly. If the serviceman is not allowed to vote, he is fighting to preserve a system that has long since passed its usefulness to him. A newspaper editor has told her that servicemen don't want the vote and that elections should be left to Ma and Pa at home. Jo disagrees violently. The serviceman isn't willing to allow indolence to put him at the mercy of the fellow with the stiffest right hook.

A friend in the armed services has remarked to her that the majority of men in the service are too uninformed of today's political issues and candidates to vote. Jo thinks something should be done. If the serviceman is uninformed today he will be uninformed tomorrow, and the next day, and the day after.

A citizen of Missoula has told her that the soldiers want and must have the vote. Jo hopes that he is right. The serviceman represents ten million Americans. If he is not allowed to vote and if he does not vote intelligently, Jo has been following a blind alley for twenty years — and Americans have been following a blind alley for about two hundred years.

Yes, Jo believes that the soldier must vote. But if the vote is the serviceman's responsibility, the responsibility of those at home is to see that he has the opportunity to examine the whole picture — a picture untinted by politicians of any creed. Jo believes that the facilities of press and radio must be joined to inform the serviceman of issues at home. Jo believes that the responsibility of those at home is to guarantee that not one, not a few, but all servicemen have the same opportunity to vote.

Some congressional members are in favor of throwing the responsibility of the soldier vote bill back to the states. Jo wonders if the states' machinery can guarantee each soldier's receiving the same opportunity to vote. Jo wonders if each individual state is able and willing to see that its servicemen are as well informed on current politics as are those men at home. Jo has her doubts.

Jo rises and thoughtfully shakes her head, tossing her long, brown hair back from her face. Jo has finished marking her ballot. A small, firm "X" centers the square favoring federal control of the soldier vote. And Jo knows that her responsibility is to know all about that control.

Spurs Explain Point System

Tanan-of-Spur members, during house meetings Monday, using round-table discussions, explained what was expected of freshmen women as Spur prospects. The Spurs, in groups of six, visited the four freshman residence houses. One leader in each group conducted the round table and the remaining five Spurs asked questions that commonly baffle the freshman woman who is working for Spur points.

The freshmen learned the scholastic requirements, the activities necessary for Spur and other general qualifications.

After the round-table discussion the freshmen women asked questions and the Spurs added impromptu bits of information.
